ARE COWARDS,

South Carolina Senator Denounces Whitecaps.

TOLBERTS ARE BLAMED

For Persecution of Negroes In Palmetto State---Farmers' Institute Meeting In Greenwood Was Lively.

Senator Ben Tillman was the speaker at the farmers' institute held at Greenwood, S. C., Wednesday. At the very beginning of his talk he pitched into the whitecappers, who have been terrorizing a portion of that section for the past ten days, whipping inoffensive negroes.

The senator calls them white cowards and said they were a disgrace to the county. He thought if the Tolberts, the republican party leaders, were still stirring up the negroes they ought to be dealt with.

If you want to uproof the evil and kill the snake, go kill the Tolbers, but don't abuse the poor, innocent black wretches.

"The yankees," said the senator, are watching as closely and the eyes of the whole world are now on the race problem in the south. They will take advantage of everything of this kind to abuse the south. You are just playing into the yankee's hands. They are wanting to cut down our representation in congress because of our new election laws, but otherwise there is little better feeling now between the two sections, but this sort of thing will arouse bad feeling. Why, just look at that Jewett woman coming down here and taking away the nigger postmaster's family. She comes from Boston, the head and center of all devilment. The yankees are ready to take up any such deviltry as this whitecapping business, and you people ought to put a stop to this.

The senator talked largely about agricultural affairs, but later got into national politics and denounced the Philippine war, sarcastically scorning McKinley's benevolent assimulation,

"I have not asked for any army appointment," said he, "because I don't think any decent man ought to engage in this outrageous war.'

The senator bragged about his part in the armor plate hold-up, and before he closed he made his usual attack upon the newspapers.

Congressman A. C. Latimer, who represents the Greenwood district, was the other speaker. It was the contest of Latimer's seat by R. R. Tolbert that caused the election riots at Phoenix last November. He did not refer to the present race trouble, although he took occasion to attack the Philippine policy.

Begged For Vindication of Law, In the afternoon a mass meeting was held to denounce the whitecapping. The prosecuting attorney of the circuit made the opening speech and the sheriff followed. They begged for the vindication of the law and the sheriff said he would arrest anybody if he only knew who to arrest, but he declared his inability to find out who was at the bottom of the trouble.

Others spoke on the same line, but Bob Cheatham, who was one of the election managers at the Phoenix box last November, when Ethridge was killed by the negroes, exploded a bombshell. He cried excitedly:

"I've got a remedy for the trouble. Drive out the Tolberts and whites and negroes will live together peaceably. Rid the country of the Tolberts and you'll stop the trouble. I'll fead the crowd to rid the country of even the name or leave my wife a widow."

Cheatham's fire-brand talk was applanded, but it was evident that the majority were against him, not believing that politics is the cause of this disturbance.

A man in shirt sleeves arose, and vehemently begged his neighbors to help him. His farm had been visited and all the negroes driven off by the whitecappers. His wife is sick from the excitement caused by the raids. He has 175 acres of land in cotton and can't get a negro to pick it. Even a well-digger he had temporarily employed had been warned not to work

The speaker was P. B. Brooks, who is an industrious farmer living not three miles from the courthouse.

Resolutions denouncing the whitecappers were adopted and a committee was appointed to investigate the trouble and report to another mass meeting to be held in the disturbed sec-

The negroes are still taking to the woods at night and many of them have left their homes for good.

It is believed that political troubles have caused the disturbance, as the negroes have been quiet since the November riots.

Where Flies Go in Winter. Some one has asked, "Where do files go in the winter?" This is a question of some interest, for a house fly is born fully grown and of natural size, and there are no little flies of the same species, the small ones occasionally observed being different in kind from the large ones. The house fly does not blie or pierce the skin, but gathers its food by a comb or rake or brush-like tongue, with which it is able to scrape the varnish from covers of books, and it thus tickles the skin of persons upon whom it alights, to feed upon the perspiration. A fly is a scavenger, and is a vehicle by which contagious diseases are spread. It poisons wounds, and may carry deadly virus from decaying organic matter into food. It retires from sight at the beginning of winter, but where it goes few people know. If a search of the house be made flies will be found in great numbers secreted in warm places in the roof or between the partitions of floors. Last winter an architect had occasion to examine a roof, and found Offers thorough practical courses in Bookkeep-ing, and Shorthand and Typewriting. Students around the chimney myriads of flies hibernating comfortably, and sufficiently alive to fly when disturbed "In overpowering clouds." No doubt this is a favorite winter resort for these creatures.-New York Press.

Chalk Produced by Hens,

A flock of 100 hens will produce in egshells several pounds of chalk annually, and yet not a pound of the substance may exist within the circult of their feeding grounds. The materials of the manufacture are found in the food consumed and in the sand, brick dust, bits of bones, etc., which hens and other birds are constantly picking up. The instinct is keen for these apparently innutritions and refractory substances, and they are devoured with as eager a relish as the cereals or insects. If hens are confined to barns or outbuildings it is obvious that the egg-producing machiners cannot be kept long in action unless the materials for the shell are supplied.
